Transformative Healthcare and Access Ambulance Service Enter Relationship to Serve One of Boston's Largest Medical Centers

Quincy – Transformative Healthcare and Access Ambulance Service today announced they have been selected through an RFP process as the vendors to support Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center (BIDMC) for intra-facility patient transports and discharges, along with system dispatching and support services.

In August 2021, BIDMC requested proposal responses to support an innovative ambulance transport model where two ambulance companies would be selected to support BIDMC's dedicated ambulance fleet and dispatch center. Transformative Healthcare and Access Ambulance Service were selected for a multi-year contract that begins December 1, 2021.

"Transformative Healthcare and Access Ambulance Service are in a tremendous position to continue our unprecedented growth across the industry by supporting BIDMC," said Thomas McEntee, CEO of Transformative Healthcare, and Adam Reis, CEO of Access Ambulance Service.

"Transformative Healthcare and Access Ambulance Service appreciate that the Massachusetts Health and Hospital Association is confronting the ongoing shortage of trained EMTs and Paramedics, and the corresponding issues related to hospital transports and pick up times. We look forward to working on solutions and to rethink the industry as a whole."

About Access Ambulance Service and Med Tech Ambulance Service

Med Tech Ambulance Service was established during the spring of 1996 in the City of Pawtucket, Rhode Island with one (1) ambulance. Med Tech continued to grow and expand throughout the State and opened a second company, Access Ambulance Service in 2007. Med Tech and Access are licensed in Rhode Island and Massachusetts. Med Tech remains the largest ambulance service in Rhode Island, and both companies combined currently have a fleet of 150 vehicles strategically located throughout both states.

Both companies have a proven track record of providing a top-notch inter-facility transport experience by servicing the local nursing home communities in both states of operation. These services provide over 3,500 patient transports each week and employ over 375 people combined. Both Access, and Med Tech have extensive experience providing ALS, BLS, Critical Care ambulance transportation, wheelchair van service in select locations, bus, and car transportation for hospitals, nursing homes, and health care agencies throughout Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Med Tech provides an onsite critical care ambulance for transportation services for both Miriam Hospital and Kent Hospital. Access (of Rhode Island) and Med Tech Ambulance Service are the primary ambulance transportation companies for the two (2) largest hospital groups in Rhode Island: Lifespan and Care New England.

The Covid-19 Response

As the largest provider in Rhode Island, Med Tech and Access were asked if they could spearhead many immediate challenges including moving Covid-19 patients, testing, and later with vaccinations.

Consequently, as the Pandemic became increasingly serious, both companies' role grew. They became one of the largest private entities conducting testing and other COVID-19 support services in the State of Rhode Island alongside the National Guard.

Some examples of our contracted responsibilities were:

- High density community pop-up testing sites
- Seven (7) strategically placed outdoor testing kiosks
- Long Term Care Facility testing
- The entire Providence School System K-12
- Higher learning institutions
- All Dept. of Correction facilities
- Support for Field hospital sites
- Support for the Dunkin Donuts Center

Once the vaccine became available, Med Tech and Access were also contracted to help with administering them by providing in-home/facility vaccinations which continues to date.
